4 February, 2026: The Lunar New Year is off to a racing start at Crown Sydney, where the Year of the Horse is being celebrated through spectacular zodiac-themed dining experiences across the month of February.

The Year of the Snake officially changes to the Year of the Horse on 17 February, but at Crown we're getting the party started early, with special offerings at four of our awarded venues.

From 3-28 February, the iconic Golden Century restaurant will showcase a festive banquet of dishes carrying auspicious Lunar New Year blessings, such as Prosperity Salad with salmon sashimi to "Pick Up Good Fortune" and braised sea cucumber with the restaurant's famous XO sauce and shallot to ensure "Wishes Come True".

Woodcut will offer unique food and beverage menu additions from 17-22 February, emphasising the bold traits of the Horse sign, such as ash-grilled abalone and shitake mushroom skewer, with shiso leaves and black vinegar sauce, or western rock lobster over ice with fragrant leaves and miso dressing.

Epicurean is offering Lunar New Year dinners from 16-21 February on a rotating menu, that includes traditional favourites BBQ roasted duck and crispy pork, and double boiled black chicken soup with ginseng and ginkgo nut. And, Teahouse will feature a range of special zodiac-inspired cocktails, giving guests every opportunity to find their perfect toast during the cultural celebration.

Crown launched the initiative in partnership with Hennessy at a black-tie cocktail party in the Pearl Ballroom featuring some of Australia's most exciting new entertainers, Crazy Rich Asians actor Chris Pang, Peter Thurnwald from XO, Kitty and It's Our Time, and actress Ana Thu from the TV series One Night and the film Mortal Kombat II later this year.

The Year of the Horse symbolizes independence, self-expression, and prosperity.

Crown Sydney CEO Stanford Le welcomed the fresh energy of the new year and said Crown Sydney would be the ultimate entertainment destination throughout February with festivities and special dining experiences across the resort.

"The Year of the Horse is all about bold moves and trying new things - we're embracing this spirit at Crown Sydney with fun zodiac-inspired experiences and dining for our guests to enjoy – and we wish all our guests a prosperous year ahead."
